Jury was Out but a Short Time Most of which was Occupied in Figuring-Many Experts Called to Testify.

The jury in the United States ciruit court of appeals at New Haven Friday brought in a verdict awarding Robbins and Pattison of this city $31.866.22 and costs in their suit for $46,000 damages against the Central Vermont railroad for the burning of their ice houses at Orcutts, near Stafford. The plaintiffs alleged that the fire was started by sparks from an engine, while Prof. B. E. Eldred of New York, a witness for the defendant, testified to the effect that bacteria in the hay in the ice houses caused spontaneous agnition.

The jury was out but a short time and it is stated that from the first they were for the plaintiff, most of the time being taken with figuring up the amount. The amount secured is practically what the plaintiffs asked without the interest, and salvage. The case has attracted much interest, because of a number of experts being called in to testify in the suit regarding the cause of the fire.

Regarding the arguments in the case the New Haven Union on Friday said:

BIG STRING OF TROUT.

W. H. Hazelhurst, C. F. Noyes and G. W. Hoyt Land 46, Weighing 32 Pounds.

The season's trout record was put at high notch on Friday when a party under the guidance of William H. Hazelhurst set out at 5 a. m. after a day's sport. With Mr. Hazelhurst were Charles F. Noyes, the New York real estate broker, and George W. Hoyt of New York who is the guest of Mr. Noyes for several days at his former home here.

There has been much interest in the coming city election as to who will be the candidate for mayor on the democratic ticket. The reports were that Dr. P. H. Harriman wanted the nomination. During his absence from the city this was denied, but his friends maintained that it was nevertheless true. Dr. Harriman on Friday evening stated that he will not be a candidate for the nomination by the democratic party. He stated that he had never seriously considered so doing. of Mr. Noyes for several days at his former home here.

When they again reported in the city they had a string of 46, which weighed 32 pounds. The best one, which was something over 1 1-4 pounds, fell to Mr. Hoyt, but Mr. Hazelhurst was top scorer when it came to numbers. He knows the brooks around here like a book and it is a rare thing for him to return with empty creel when he sets out for the haunts of the trout, never seriously considered so doing, and has stated that he will not allow his name to be used. He says that he has pienty to do without adding any more duties.

Miss Nellie Loring has been the guest of her cousin, Miss Florence Hewitt of Stonington.

Michael Kenealy, chairman of the republican state central committee, representing the raill:oad company, made the closing argument for the defense in the United States court Friday morning in the case of Robbins & Pattison against the Central Vermont Railroad company. This suit involves damages which it is claimed was caused by a fire communicated from a locomotive on the railroad and which burned ice houses in Stafford.

There were three or four experts put on the witness stand during the taking of testimony this week. Much was said about spontaneous combustion, which the defense claims was the cause of the fire.

Alluding to these scientific terms and to the experts, Mr. Kenealy had occasion to refer to wireless telegraphy, and said: "And yet, wireless telegraphy did not come from the Sheffield Scientific school." Mr. Kenealy used this expression to show that not all the experts were hy any means infallible. Treating Road with Dusterline. Washington street from the city line to Harland's corner, a distance of line to Hariand's corner, a distance of half a mile, is being sprinkled with Dusterline, an odoriess, oily solution, which is put on by watering cans and is intended to keep down the dust. The expense, which will be about $200, is being borne by the abutting property owners. Two applications will be given of the preparation, the cost being eight to nine cents a gallon. Dr. Frank Bunnell and Willius Austin started the idea.

Center of Population.

To say that an amateur production is the best seen in a long time in this city is high praise, but was the practically unanimous verdict given by the audience of four hundred people at the Olympic theater Friday evening after seeing The Trustee, a four act drama, given under the auspices of Open House and the direction of J. C. Davis, one of the enthusiastic and earnest workers of the club. For every act there were curtain calls and every telling situation in the play received an enthusiastic burst of applause for the really professional way in which it was grasped and presented. The young ladies in the cast were remembered with bouquets.

The taking little drama was carried along with the greatest smothness, not a cue being missed in the whole production, and the most was made of even the minor characters. The following was the cast of characters with Center of Population.

The center of population of the continental United States, which at the time of the first census was 23 miles east of Baltimore, has been traveling westward with each decade. In 1900 it was located near Columbus, Ind., about 40 miles south of Indianapolis. In 1890 it was 26 miles further east and in the two previous decades it kept rather near to Cincinnati. With each decade it has moved a little further west, but has continued to keep very close to the thirty ninth paralled, the latitide approximately of Baltimore and Cincinnati.

With the development and spread even the minor characters. The following was the cast of characters, given in the order in which they appear. Pierre Ecuer, servant at the trustee's W. E. Stinson Jeremiah Marsh, Langdon's assist-ant, Edgar Rice

Baltimore and Cincinnati.

With the development and spread of population in the west the wonder is that the center of population keeps so disproportionately far to the east of the center of area. It now stops at about one-fourth of the entire distance from coast to coast. The present census will doubtless carry it a little farther west, and perhaps a little to the south, because of the new population in Oklahoma. Other western and southwestern states, have made large additions to their population, but they have lost much by migration to Canada and latterly to Mexico.—Philadelphia Press. delphia Press.
